Washington News and Gossip. INTERNAL REVENUE .- The receipts from this source to-day were $546,285.61. Hon. S. S. Cox continues to improve. He sat up to-day for the first time since he was first taken ill.

FIRST LIEUT. H. H. C. Dunwoody, 4th artillery, has been ordered to report to the chief signal officer of the army for duty. SECRETARY BELKNAP leaves the city this evening for West Point to attend the annual examination at the military academy. He will be absent about a week. THE SUM of $6 was received at the Treasury to-day from an anonymous contributor, who wishes "to walk hereafter in the fear of the Lord." MR. EDWARD S. MILLS, of Illinois, was married to Miss M. Lela Pool, daughter, of Senator Pool, of North Carolina, at St. Aloysius church last evening. THE EXAMINATION of "plebs" at West Point, which was completed yesterday, resulted in the rejection of twenty-four out of a class of ninety. one. The examination of the graduating class commences to-day. SAW THE PRESIDENT .- The Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Treasury, Senators Scott, Lewis, Hitchcock, Pomeroy and Harlan and Representatives Swann and Lewis, had interviews with the President to-day. TRANSPER OF NAVAL OFFICERS .- Lieut. Harry N. Manneey has been ordered to the Michigan. Lieut. T. C. Terrell has been detailed from the Michigan and ordered to duty on the Pacific station. GEN. S. A. DUNCAN, assistant commissioner of patents, has resigned. Mr. J. M. Thacher of the appeal board, will succeed General Dun. can, it is thought, and General Spear, now in charge of the division of civil engineering, will succeed Mr. Thatcher.

THE House held a formal session this morning in accordance with the agreement of yesterday, for the purpose of having the tariff bill signed, the law requiring that it must be done in open session. At eleven o'clock the bill was not quite ready, and a recess was taken until twelve, when the House was called to order, and the Speaker signed the bill and announced the House adjourned until Friday next.

THE FIRST COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION under the civil service rules took place to-day, under the supervision of the Treasury examining board. The examination was to fill three vacancies of second-class clerkships in the Third Auditor's office, and the applicants numhad one seventh of a chance of securing the desired promotion. The examining board will not probably report the result of the examination under several days.

ADJOURNMENT .- There seems to be no doubt now that Congress will adjourn finally on Monday next. The tariff bill having been disposed of, there are but three important bills requiring action, and they can probably be passed in a single day. They are the sundry civil appro-priation bill, now before the Senate, which will probably be completed to-day. Upon this, there will doubtless be a conference committee on the Senate amendments. The fortification appro-priation bill, already passed the House, has been reported to the Senate without amendments. The river and harbor appropriation bill, also passed by the House, has been reported to the Senate with amendments, but none of them are of such a nature as to consume much time in discussion, hence it is quite certain the session will be brought to a close on Monday.

THE RAM ALBEMARLE PRIZE CASE .- TOday. Judge Humphreys, sitting as judge of the district court, made an order that Commodore W. E. LeRoy, Capt. Earl English and F. K. Lewis be appointed appraisers of the ram Albemarle. It will be recalled that on the 23d of October, 1864, W. B. Cushing, with a boat's crew, exploded a torpedo under the rebel ram Albemarle, lying near the town of Plymouth, N. C., causing her to sink; thus opening a way to our forces to advance up the river. Subsequently she was raised and used in the government service. In July, 1865, she was li beled as a prize, and the appraisement, $79,994 paid into the Treasury, but this sum, it is alleged, was less than her value at the time of her appraisement, she having been dismantled and stripped of her iron armor. To obtain a reappraisement Congress passed a special act approved April 1st last, and to day Messrs. Carlisle and McPherson made the motion to carry out that act, on which the above order was made.

THE TREATY FAILURE-Exciting Debate in Parliament.—The moving by Lord Russel in the House of Lords last night of his long threatened address to the Queen praying that instructions be given to her Majesty's representatives at be given to her Majesty's representatives at Geneva to retire from the board of arbitration, if the claims for indirect damages were not withdrawn, gave rise to a long and animated debate. The Earl in his address said that the honor of the English government required that it should speak plainly, and that it should say to the United States "withdraw the indirect claims or no arbitration." The bombastic Earl concluded his address with: "The pation must concluded his address with: "The nation must show, as it has before, that it is jealous of the honor of the British crown; it must treat the United States as it treated them in the Trent case." Earl Granville defended the right of the United States to place its own construction on the treaty, and to introduce the indirect claims. He also defended the commissioners

A report made from the educational committee denounces the efforts of Romanists to abolish the common school system, and pledges the conference to use every effort to make such schools permanent; opposes the division of the public money among denominational schools, and says the conference will resist all efforts to remove the Bible from public schools. The report was unanimously adopted. A resolution was adopted to send a delegation of three members to confer with the Methodist Church south, with a view to harmonize all differences. Resolutions were adopted that the local preachers must hold a license for a censecutive year before ordination. The conference them adjourned size die.

THE LATE JAMES GORDON BENNETT .- The THE LATE JAMES GORDON BENNETT.—The New York Associated Press yesterday passed appropriate resolutions upon the death of James Gordon Bennett. A special dispatch to the Cincinnati Gasette says: "It is reported that Horace Greeley, Gen. In the meantime his remains will be placed in a vault. It is asserted that Bennett left $200,000 in his will toward the completion of the new Cathedral in toward the completion of the new Cathedral in Fifth avenue, and a number of liberal bequests to Catholic charitable institutions. His estate is estimated at five or six million dollars."

THE VICE PRESIDENCY

A FIERCE CANVASS.

EXCITING SCENES.

[Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.] PHILADELPHIA, June 5 .- The first day of the convention opens with the relics of yesterday's storm, the air being raw and chilly. The whole city, however, is alive. Every delegation is this morning complete, and the hotels and streets are overflowing with visitors. In the vicinity of the convention hall, Broad street, and the Union League building are very handsomely decorated with flags, streamers, banners, etc. Clubs and delegations are forming and marching up and down in front of the hall headed by bands and drum corps playing in-spiriting airs. There is such a pressure for seats that the convention hall could be filled ten times over. There are three hundred appli-cations for press seats, and only 150 have thus far been assigned. Every journal of any ac-count in the country is represented.

THE MEETING OF THE CLANS. All of the delegations are holding preliminary meetings this morning, preparatory to going into the convention. The excitement is therefore renewed over the Vice Presidency. A bitter contest is raging in the Pennsylvania delegation over Wilson, Scott, and Colfax. The first leads by only two votes over Scott, but the delegation is instructed to vote as a unit. Mississippi, reported for Wilson, has decided for Colfax; while Alabama shows a majority for Wilson. In the Missouri delegation Hen. H. T. Blow has just made a speech denouncing the Wilson syndicate, and bitterly assailing the newspapers. After he finished, the delegation your 20 for Wilson and 2 for Colfax. voted 30 for Wilson, and 2 for Colfax.

A "SYNDICATE" COLLARED. Col. Halloway, of Indiana, became very much excited, and seizing McCullagh, of the St. Louis Democrat by the collar, declared that if Colfax was defeated he should hold him and his aspossible to learn how all the delegations are voting this forenoon, as they are so scattered, but Col. Forney has just come in and says

WILSON IS LEADING THE DAY, but that Colfax will have a large vote. The Illinots and Ohio vote for Wilson is giving him a good send off. The contest between Wilson and Colfax has become so close that there is now a good deal of talk for a new man, and Governor Hawley, of Connecticut, is coming to the front. The first ballot and probably the second and third will show no result for the Vice Presidency. The Press to-day estimates on first ballot: Colfax, 286; Wilson, 347; scatter-ing, 87. The New York Tribune to-day estimates Colfax 230, Wilson 367, and the rest scattering. The World gives Colfax 294 and Wilson 347; rest scattering. The Times says Wilson was ahead last night. Forney says the figures now show that if Wilson's friends stick he will be nominated, but it is absolutely necessary that they should not break. He needs every pledged vote. Forney, himself, is for Colfax, and I there-

MORE BLECTIONEERING CIRCULARS. As may be inferred from the foregoing, Senater Wilson's friends are working with energy, and have flooded the hotels with circulars in his interest, and against Mr. Colfax. They are addressed to "Delegates to the Republican Na-tional Convention," "Soldiers of the Union Army," "Republicans of the South," "Repub-licans of New England," "Republicans of the Northwest," "Republicans of the Pacific Slope," &c. A prominent republican tele-graphed from Washington last night the following dispatch, which is printed and widely cir-

"WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872 .- In September, 1870, Mr. Colfax published in the New York Independent a letter from which the following is an abstract. [Here follows abstract printed in ye abstract. [Here follows abstract printed in yesterday's papers.] After writing as above, Mr. Colfax told Henry Wilson that under no circumstances would he be a candidate, and upon the strength of that promise Mr. Wilson allowed his name to be used for the position. Months afterwards Colfax announced himself a candidate for renomination, and is now electioneering. Her his treatment of Mr. Wilson hard. ing. Has his treatment of Mr. Wilson been fair and manly? Is it essential to the success of the republican party that it should nominate a man guilty of such conduct? Why not permit him—as he said he intended to do to clear his relief. as he said he intended to do-to close his political life absolutely? What national loss would it be?"

The following was circulated freely to-day, and seemed to create quite a sensation: "Delegates to the republican convention read and reflect. Victory can be secured only by wise action now. Pennsylvania and Misso are doubtful states. A Pennsylvanian on the ticket will add thousands of Pennsylvania votesto and take none from Grant. Colonel D Branson, of Philadelphia, would unite the now divided vote of Missouri. Act accordingly." COLORED REPUBLICANS FOR COLFAX.

A delegation of colored republicans from Washington are here working very earnestly for Mr. Colfax, and have captured nearly every colored delegate from the south for 1. m. The Washington train this a. m. has seventeen car loads, including a great many republican members and senators.

THE PLATFORM. The renomination of President Grant on the first ballot, if not by acclamation, being a foregone conclusion, the convention will have no more important duty than the adoption of a strong platform; one which in accordance with the spirit of the party from the beginning shall be outspoken, fearless, and aggressive. So far as can be ascertained from conversations with delectors with delegates from various sections there is likely to be great unanimity with regard to this formal manifesto of the party. The only ques-tion of prominence upon which any considera-ble diversity of opinions is known to exist is the

THE TARIFF PLANK. The Pennsylvania and New England delegations are understood to be practically unanimous

THE MORMONS WANT TO COME IN. The Mormons are in the field and claiming representation in the convention. A delegation from the faithful, consisting of Frank Fuller and George A. Smith, "number of wives nine," claim to represent the state of Utah, and are flitting about and asserting their right to a voice in the deliberations of the body to assemble today. They have made application for tickets as delegates, and it is stated have received some sort of encouragement at the hands of one or two delegates in response to their persistent demands. Smith is a representative Mormon and one of the most faithful of the faithful. He has nine wives, is first vice president of the Morne church, one of the counselors of Brigham Young and so far as heard from is uninstructed. is the first time that a Mormon delegation ever made an attempt to get into a national conven-tion, and it is possible that the convention may find itself under the responsibility of dealing directly with the faithful in a political sense. The Gentile delegates are H. G Holister, S. A. Gould and O. G. Sawyer.

[Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 5 .- The Academy of Music was opened at 11, and by 11.30 the, four tiers of vast galleries were crowded with spectators. A fairy scene was presented. A flood of gas light fell from among the banners, streamers, evergreen archways, depending flowers and wreaths that were tastefully arranged. Every portion of the Academy was tucked out in buds and blossoms redolent with exquisite perfume. It is indeed a veritable landscape from fairy land, canopied with flags and battle banners, and elicits rounds of applause as the very triumph of the decorative art. It is a sight of brilliant beauty seldom seen and never forgotten. The private boxes are almost hidden from view in graceful folds of American flags; the front of the Prince of Wales box is adorned with an oil painting of Lincoln, while the box opposite bears on its front a portrait of President Grant. The apex of the dome is encircled with miniature flags and from the center fall in graceful festoons massive links of evergreens, which are looped up on the para-pet of the family circle. The exterior of the family circle and balcony are profusely adorned with the coats of arms of all the states and territories which rest on flags, the intervening spaces being occupied by wreaths of laurel. The pillars supporting the tiers are all garnished with flags artistically disposed. The president's chair and desk are placed on a raised dais in the center of the stage. Urns of fresh cut flowers flank the platform of the presiding officer, and immediately in front of the desk is a fine oil painting of Washington. This picture is encircled with a cordon of small flags of blue silk studied thickless. flags of blue silk, studded thickly with stars of gold. Behind the desk of the president are strung aloft two massive stands of white and gold, each upholding a coronet of gas jets shaded with glass globes. Between these sumptuous light dispensers is a row of ornate urns brim full of odorous exotics. A parapet four feet high, green with creeping plants forms, the back ground to this conspicuous position of the ruling spirit of the convention. From the rear of this vy mantled partition, rise up in tier on tier like the seats of an amphitheatre, the chairs and desks of the representatives of the press of the Union, The desks are covered with white muslin, and arranged in three parallel sections with intervening passage ways, thereby affording easy ingress and egress. On both sides of the desks are vases of rare exetics, and in the rear, encircled by evergreens, is a set scene, representing an Italian sunset. This background, as seen from the balcony or parquet circle, forms one of the most beautiful scenes ever be-held at the academy. Two bands are playing the national academy airs in succession, the audience applauding almost every strain, and thus, amid the mingled roar of artillery outside, and the music inside of the building, the great convention came to order soon after 12 o'clock. THE CONVENTION OPENED. At 12:20 Governor Claffin called the convention to order, and amid great silence spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the convention: Elected according to the usage of the republican party in conventions of the people held in every state, you are assembled for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the two highest offices in the gift of the American people. You represent a party tounded on the broadest principles of freedom, justice and humanity, and whose achievements have been the wonder and admiration of the civilized world. The promises made four years since of progress and reform have been faithfully fulfilled in the guarantee by the nation of equal rights to all; in the re-duction of the public expenditure and the public debt; in the decrease of the public burdens; in the improvement of the public credit; in the establishment of the public faith, that no act of repudiation shall ever stain the statute books: and in securing peace and order throughout the entire republic. You are summoned to declare anew your fidelity to those principles and purposes which have brought such beneficent results to the nation. We will not fear that the people will desert those who have been faithful in their high trust for other men and other organizations; although they may adopt our principles and promise to adhere to our policy. Let us go forward with confident faith that our cause will triumph, notwithstanding unexpected defections, over all combinations, however skillfully planned, because in its continued success are centered the best interests and the highest hopes of the country." In con-clusion, he called upon Rev. Alexander Reed, of Philadelphia, who addressed the Throne of Grace, asking a divine blessing on the nation and whole country, and we commend that policy of national exchange which secures to the workingmen liberal wages, to agriculture remunerative prices, to mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise, and to the nation commercial prosperity and independence."

It is suggested by several prominent delegates that as the party won its first great victory with this resolution in its platform, and since the principles therein embodied have shaped the policy of every republican administration from the beginning, the present convention could not do better than to re-adopt the same language upon this important subject.

REVENUE REFORM PLANE.

There is also a pressure for a revenue reform plank. In addition to the delegations mentioned as favorable to a protective plank, several of those from the South are counted upon to favor such an expression upon this subject. The western delegates, especially those from Wisconsin, lova, Indiana and Ohio, are divided on this question, but a majority will endeavor to have it ignored or touched upon very light. Wendell Phillips sends a labor plank to be inserted.

Forney has a double-leaded editorial this morning, which is already creating a good deal of bad feeling. He demands the abandonment of the republican state ticket here and the selection of a new one, or else predicts defeat in October. He says:—"It is endeavoring to pack the Pennsylvania delegation in the national convention by complimenting a candidate for ar we breathe." Unlike the last, your object is to preserve, not to destroy; and, gentlemen, differing from both these in character and aims, you will differ no less in the nature of your deliberations. With us the selection of a Presidential candidate is a foregone conclusion. In that regard the people decided for us in advance, and we have only to put their will into proper shape by formally nominating Ulysses S. Grant; and, with the blessing of God, we shall not only make the nomination without demur, without debate, without dissent, but we shall make it under such auspices as will ensure its complete and abundant ratification at the polls. It does not need, nor, considering my temporary occupation of this chair, would it be suitable that I should enter into any elaborate commentary as to the merits of our candidate: but this I wil' say: that notwithstanding all the malignant venom that has been spit at him-all the odious calumnies that have been heaped upon him-all the disgraceful slanders that have been circulated in regard to him, General Grant, at this moment, enjoys more of the con-fidence of his countrymen, and is believed by them to be an honester, truer and better man than any of his detractors. No one in our day has been more causelessly, more shamelessly vilified, and no one will be more thoroughly vindicated. The great heart of the American people beats responsive to truth and justice, and, as they have tried and tested and trusted him; as they know that his administration has been wise and faithful; as

In regard to the platform to be adopted, it is not for me to anticipate, but, along with other important dectrines, it will undoubtedly contain the widest recognition of human freedom, and the clearest affirmation of the duties which the government owes to the laboring masses, wherever and however employed in town or country; and with such candidates and such a creed, whether we have to encounter the decaying remnants of a once powerful party, but now so feeble that it is piteous to its enemy for succor, or an incongruous alliance of ill assorted factions, with no bond of union but the greed of office, or all of them combined, we shall go forth conquering and to conquer.

The sentiment that the people had decided on a nominee for President already, and that Grant was an honester and truer President, and enjoyed more of the confidence of the American people than any of his predecessors, was greeted with wild cheering, the convention rising to its

THE EFFORTS TO DEFEAT COLFAX. The desperate efforts made to defeat Colfax are best illustrated by the following circular got out this morning, and now being circulated in the convention:

Reasons Against Nominating Colfax .- First, he s advocated before this convention by the monopolies and corporations such as the Western Union Telegraph Company, the Besse-mer steel monopoly, and the public domain railways and their Easter feeders. Second, he does not represent the solid and sincere side of American public life; he smiles without sympathy, and flatters without affection; he has een too well rewarded already at the nands of the party, and to renominate him is to give a second endorsement to false pretences. Third. the northwest has gone back on him, his own section which ought to know him best; he has no great state there except Indiana by the grace of Governor Morton, and Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio. the battle-ground, do not ask his continuance on the ticket. Fourth. The influential and alert Washington correspondents, many of whom are republicans, have professional reasons for no entitling him to their support. Is it well to provoke this opposition during the next five months Fifth. He has entrapped a poor hard-working and warm-hearted republican, a founder of the party-Henry Wilson-into standing for the Vice Presidency, and would now for a freak, a pique, or for some vacillating motive, humiliate this worthy and able republican. Let these considerations be weighed. SPEECH BY GENERAL LOGAN.

The convention having completed its temporary organization, Gen. Logan was espied in one of the stage boxes and was called upon by the entire convention to come forward and speak. He finally consented, and came on the stage and made a brief and enthusiastic speech in support of Grant, in which he said that the president had faithfully performed the duties imposed upon him and deserved a re-election. [Great applause.] The republican party said to him, "Well done thou good and faithful servant, you have been faithful over few things, we will now make thee ruler over many things." [Great cheering.] THE CHAMPION OF EMANCIPATION IN PAVOR OF

THE HERO OF APPOMATTOX. The New York delegation then called upon the venerable Gerritt Smith, who they said was the oldest champion of emancipation living to come forward and speak. As Mr. Smith walked down the aisle the band played "Hail to the Chief," and the convention rose and cheered. He spoke for fifteen minutes in warm terms of General Grant and the work which the repubican party had accomplished.

SENATOR MORTON'S SPEECH. Senator Morton, of Indiana, was then urged to speak. He appeared on the stage, and also met an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Morton remained in his chair while speaking of the principles of the republican party, and said that it was a worshipper of principles, not men. His remarks were received with earnest approval especially the review which he gave of what the party had accomplished in four years. MR. ORR ON GRANT, GREELEY, AND THE TRI-BUNE.

When Senator Morton finished, ex-Speaker Orr, of South Carolina, was called upon by the Virginia de legation to address the convention, which rose to its feet and welcomed him. Mr. Orr alluded to the arraignment made of Washington, of Jackson, and of Grant. The first two had on lived the aspersions cast upon them, as Grant vould outlive the calumny heaped upon him. It had been said that Grant had proved a fa lure. He thought the country could stand just four more years of such failure.
[Great laughter and applause.] He alluded to Greeley's demand for the kuklux law and the Tribune's support of the same, which elicited hisses for Creeley and the Tribune.

Gov. Ogl. sby was then called on by the Illinois delega ion, and addressed the convention. The committee on permanent organization are about reacy to report.

Gov. Hawley made a brief address, and then John A. Gray, a colored delegate from Arkansas, was enthusiastically called for and made a

The committee on permanent organization reported Thomas Settle, of North Carolina, to be president of the convention. He was unani-mously elected; Orr, of South Carolina, and ex-Senator Henderson, of Missouri, being his only contestants. At this point the confusion was in-tense and the temporary chairman seemed ut-terly incompetent to restore order.

THE DELEGATES to the republican national convention are assembling rapidly. THE CONVENTION CALLED TO ORERR.

At a little after noon ex-Governor Claffin, calling the convention to order, said: (Here follows the speech as in our special dispatches.) Here Gov. Claffin nominated Hon. Morton McMichael for temporary chairman. Hon. H. S. Lane, J. H. Plutt of Virginia, and Mr. Lewis, colored, of Louisiana, conducted him to the dair. [Applause.]

Mr. McMichael on taking the chair said:

The speech is published in our special dispatches

Mr. McMichael was applauded after his sentence of welcome, and also after allusions to the new race, colored equality, Cincinnati without a constituency, and a party without principle. The mention of name of Grant was vociferously applauded, and especially when his renomination was declared as a foregone conclusion. The applause broke forth with if possible, increased enthusiasm, and when Mr. McMichael referred to the calumnies directed at President Grant, and the popular confidence in him, there were repeated cheers, throwing up of hats, and waving of handkerchiefs. Other parts of the address were applauded, accompanied with wild cheers.

THE PERMANENT ORGANIZATION. PHILADELPHIA, June 5 .- Thomas Settle, of N. C., will be permanent chairman. There is to be but one session, and only an organization is to be completed to day. A committee will be appointed to prepare a platform for to-morrow, when it will be reported, and nominations made at that session.

Senator Wilson's friends claim four hundred and twenty delegates. ONE FOR GREELEY. Ex-Governor Pierpont, of West Virginia, has seceded from the delegation to the convention. In a speech to the delegates declaring his preference for Greeley, he said he had hoped when selected, without solicitation, to come as a delegate to this convention, that there might still be an opportunity to save the party by the nomination of an acceptable Presidential candidate, one who would obey the laws and respect the popular will; but it is now evident that it was hoping against hope; that this is not a meeting for deliberation as to the interests of the republican party, or of the country, but a meeting to obey the exacting demands of arrogant power. Neither the admonitions of Cincinnati nor of Sumner are beeded, and it is resolved to destroy the the organization to gratify a mere perstroy the the organization to gratify a mere person—Grant—I therefore withdraw from the delegation, and give this timely notice to fill my place. I shan then be ince to give my earnest support to Horace Greeley.

The Murder of Capt. Colvocoresses.

New York, June 5.—A Bridgeport (Conn.) dispatch states that Capt. Colvocoresses left the Sterling House Monday evening at half-past 1d o'clock, on his way to the New Tork boat, on which he had previously secured passage. He had a satchel with him, which he seemed to guard carefully. Shortly after, a pistol shot was heard by the police, who found the captain dying, having received a bullet in the lower left breast and a severe cut on the left hip. His sword-cane was bent double, showing that he had defended himself stoutly. A large single-barrel pistol of a peculiar make was found near him; his satchel and watch were gone. It is believed the satchel contained about $10,000. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above fasts. The murderers are unknown. Capt. C. had a life insurance $60,000
